National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment
After clearance of overnight rain and snow in the south of the area, we are back to the regime of clear or sunny spells and wintry showers. For one reason or another, ice is likely to pose a hazard across some areas this morning. Additionally, a further few cm of snow is likely across some of the high ground in western Scotland.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow and Ice

Valid from 05:55 on Thu, 18th Jan 2018 until 11:00 on Thu, 18th Jan 2018

Ice is likely to continue to be a problem in places this morning. This will be due to a mix of clear spells and wintry showers in the north and west of Scotland, with some further accumulations of snow on hills. Further south, across Northern Ireland, northern England and parts of southern and central Scotland, overnight rain, sleet and (in places) heavy snow is clearing to allow icy stretches to develop in places.

Some roads and railways are likely to be affected with longer journey times. Injuries may occur on icy surfaces.
